Woman Again Suffers Agonies Of Crucifixion

KONNERSREUTH, Germany — A Roman Catholic priest said Theresa Neumann, "the miracle of Konnersreuth", suffered agonies of the crucifixion Friday as she has on almost every Good Friday since 1926.

Rev. Josef Naber, a village priest was the only outsider allowed to enter the Bavarian mountain cottage where the ailing 57-year-old woman lives.

Eight thousand persons flocked to Konnersreuth hoping to witness the phenomenon, but they came in vain.

The priest said that the woman did not want visitors Friday because she was sick and it was the 30th anniversary of the occurrence.

He appeared twice at the door of the cottage to tell the crowd that stigmata — bleeding wounds — had reoccurred over her heart "but it was not as prounced as in previous years."

Catholic church authorities never have made any pronouncement concerning Theresa Neumann's "stigmatization." However, no obstacles have been placed in the path of Catholics who wish to visit her.

Canada's Farm Policies

Down in Ottawa in the House of Commons the Conservative, CCF and Social Credit parties combined to condemn the Government's agricultural policy and proposed in a motion and an amendment that legislation should be introduced to provide parity prices for agriculture. There was not much agreement as to just what constituted parity prices but in general they advocated the policy followed in the United States. Mr. Gardiner, in defending the Government policy, did not pretend that the Canadian farmer had no difficulties, but did say that a large part of our trouble was caused by the whims of the weather and international economic changes entirely beyond our control.

H. H. Hannum, President of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, has said of the Government butter program: "It is difficult to conceive of a farm program that is more considerate of both consumer and taxpayers' interests than this one."

At Regina, last summer, Ezra Taft Benson, the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, in commenting on Canadian farm policy said: "Your Government has long devoted far more attention to the quality of your wheat going into the foreign market than we have. Most of your agricultural controls likewise are designed to encourage quality production rather than to limit output. We hope now at long last to move in the same direction."

A report recently of some of the ablest agriculturists in the United States, headed by O. B. Jesness, Chief of the Division of Agricultural Economics, University of Minnesota, has this to say: "The parity price formula, having outlived its day of usefulness, should be abandoned in the interest of gearing a farm program to present economic realities."

The greatest problem confronting the Government today with regard to agriculture is the surplus of wheat and butter.

The great majority of farmers and all farm organizations favor the sale of grain through the Wheat Board and support the Government's policy of a floor price on butter and during the whole lengthy critical debate no member of the conservative, CCF or Social Credit parties had anything better to offer.

Think and Thank!

Have we realized that the words "think" and "thank" are related to each other? The dictionary says they belong to the "same linguistic family."

Certainly thoughtfulness and thankfulness go together in human experience. The thoughtful person is usually the thankful person. The more he thinks about life the more he realizes how much he owes to others for any success or enjoyment he may have known. Like Einstein, he says, "Many times a day I realize how much my own outer and inner life is built upon the labors of my fellow-men, both living and dead, and how earnestly I must exert myself in order to give in return as much as I have received."

On the other hand, it is thoughtlessness that is the most frequent cause of thanklessness. We do not deliberately and knowingly accept the gifts of others and withhold our gratitude; we just use them and fail to realize that they have come to us out of their effort and kindness. Especially is this true of the many and continuous mercies of God to us. We become so accustomed to their unfailing arrival we cease to be aware of the Giver and to feel thankful.

The psalmist knew of this danger of thanklessness because of thoughtlessness; therefore he said, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits."

What Are Sun Spots Doing To Our Weather?

By L. W. NEWCOMBE

From all over the world, weather records are being broken by storms, extremes of cold and winds, with accompanying loss of life and property. These storms come suddenly and with little warning from the forecaster.

Especially severe has been the long, cold spell which, starting in Siberia, encompassed all of Europe from Norway to Italy, destroying hundreds of millions of dollars worth of crops and causing terrible suffering to livestock and humans. The stories tell of disaster heart-rending in scope and intensity, with rioters battling for the depleted food stocks. The United States has sent in one and one-half million dollars worth of emergency food and clothing by airlift.

It is said that 10,000,000 Britons were plagued with burst water pipes, and the Rhine was frozen for over 40 miles of its route in Germany. In France 5,000,000 acres of winter wheat were blighted. More than 800,000 tons of ice 15 feet thick in places were piled up along the Seine, and when the big thaw comes it will probably be a worse disaster, with floods all over the countries, avalanches, etc.

Back in October, the sun started its sun's spots cycle which will reach its peak during 1957-58, according to physicists. From these sun spots have issued flares during the past month which are hydrogen explosions, sending out cosmic rays, millions of which reach the earth, and which scientists fly high to study. Undoubtedly these nuclear reactive rays affect the weather, for it's the sun from which the earth relies for its life and heat.

While these estimated 1,000,000 hydrogen explosions and fall-out, spread out from the sun in an immense arc in all directions into the surrounding heavens, yet some small quantity reaches the earth, perhaps not to equal more than a hundred such if occurring on the earth, yet there is enough to show what a few such explosions on the earth itself can do to our climate.

It will be interesting to watch what destruction and change will be observed when hydrogen bombs are exploded on earth this spring contemporaneously with the climaxing storms on the sun. No doubt life on earth will be much more hazardous for many of its inhabitants, in the future.

Tragic Conversations

It'll be a great day when everybody has a telephone and nobody has to use a party line. Until that day, however, it behooves us all to have consideration for the other fellow and not keep up long conversations that monopolize the lines.

Down in Miami, Florida, a woman who refused to quit talking on a party line while a neighbor tried frantically to phone an ambulance for a dying heart attack victim, said later "It was all a misunderstanding".

The stricken man, 86-year-old G. T. Lenelin, died a short time after being taken to hospital.

Mrs. Ann Heidenrich, who had refused to get off the line, said she was "very upset" when she found out that it was an emergency call and that Mr. Lenelin had died.

This unfortunate experience could be repeated here, anytime. Party line telephone subscribers should keep their conversations brief. You never know when it is urgent for your neighbor to get on the line in an emergency.

Long-Lived Animals

Except for the tortoise and turtle, man probably lives longer than any other member of the animal kingdom. A turtle captured on the Island of Mauritius in 1766 is known to have lived one hundred and fifty-two years, and other specimens are thought to be even older than that. Among mammals, the elephant has the greatest longevity, but few, it is thought, live to be more than man's allotted span of "three-score-and-ten." Most probably die of old age at fifty or sixty. The gorillas and other large apes seldom reach thirty-five.

Among domesticated animals, the horse probably holds the honors, sometimes exceeding thirty. Among the birds, parrots and eagles may live sixty years.

Voice Of The People

Readers are invited to make free expression of opinions on any subject. Letters should be short and concise. The Editor reserves the right to condense or reject any letter.

OPPOSED TO "X" SYSTEM

Mr. Editor:

For twenty years, Social Crediters were apparently satisfied with the present system of voting, owing to the fact that, while they plumped their votes, the opposition voted down the list and helped elect most of the Social Credit members, until their eyes were opened and they refused to vote for any Social Crediter in the last election, with the result that many Social Crediters lost their seats. This evidently does not please the party, hence their cry for the "X" marking of ballots. Any voter that has not the intelligence to mark 1-2-3, can hardly be expected to make an X.

How does the "X" system work? In a constituency where there are 20,000 voters, what would be the quota? Divide 20,000 by 5 and you have 4,000. If the different candidates each got anywhere near the same number of votes, the one with over 4,000 would be elected. Let us say the top candidate received 4,100 votes, which elects him, what about the other 15,900 voters who have been disfranchised. When a person goes into a store to buy something and cannot get what they want, it is only reasonable to take the next best article to be procured. This is what our present system does for us. How can any one say it is good for the people to disfranchise thousands in order to further further political aggrandizement? Do Social Crediters believe that "The End Justifies the Means?" Would it not be more sensible to educate the people to be able to write 1-2-3, than derive them of their vote? No, it seems that politicians want to keep the people divided so that they can control them. Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel. Turn to 1st. Cor. 13:11 for sound advice.

AUTHERINE LUCY

Mr. Pue's article was very good, and it shows that we have race prejudice too. But at least here in Canada our white children go to school with Negro children and there is no thought of discrimination. The hysterics and mob violence of the Deep South are certainly very poor publicity for the United States.

S. M.

The Negro ex-student at the University of Alabama doesn't deserve any sympathy. She brought trouble not only on herself but got the white students in a jam. She asked for it by horning in a white university where she wasn't wanted.

A WHITE WOMAN

All men are created equal? In Alabama a man can't even live a normal life because the color of his skin is black. I'm ashamed to say I'm white.

COUNTY CAPERS

A wonderful thing has happened here at Thorhild. It became a county. "What is a county?" you might ask. Well, it is when the ratepayers elect a council to spend the money we manage to put up. What did they do with it? To sum it all up, you can just about put it in a 13 oz. bottle.

I live just a couple of miles from one councillor. When my wife got sick and had to go to the hospital, I went to see him, so he would snowplow the road. I waited four days for the snowplow, and as I write he has not been here yet. No attention to expectant mothers and babies. So dear readers, this is what they call a county.

HAVEN OF REST

The Haven of Rest, North Edmonton, is a faith home, that was started three years ago by a few Christians, who realized the need of such a home for the aged and needy.

The home is beautifully situated on five acres of excellent land, north-east of the city on Highway No. 15. Some landscaping has been done, and there are also three cottages and a two-storey house with full basement, all free of encumbrances.

Plans for this year include the erecting of a central building to accommodate more people. This project will be entirely run on faith and all time and labor donated. If you would like to assist in any way we feel you would be well rewarded for your help.

At the present time, we have a cottage, furnished, for rent to a Christian couple, who are able to take care of themselves, but who would like the fellowship and atmosphere of Christian surroundings.

Your prayers and support will be greatly appreciated.

ARE WE ENVIOUS?

As I sit here basking in this beautiful California sunshine, I'm thinking of you folks back home. The winter hasn't been too kind, I hear, but now that February is gone, it won't be long until spring and we are looking forward to our trip home to see you all again.

We are enjoying the Mannville Mirror every week, which you are so kindly sending us. I would like to send in my favorite salad recipe, which is very timely in the spring of the year, and is a very good one as well; and not used enough, for the simple reason that its never thought of or heard about.

HER PRESSURE POPS

Often I read comments in your Voice column, which elevate my blood pressure beyond the point of safety. Of en I have wanted to sit down and put my thoughts on paper. That letter of H. E. Nichols, in which he opposes fluoridation, was the real pay-off. I'm still fuming at the idea of a mere layman trying to dictate to professional doctors of medicine on such a subject. Incidentally, in addition to being a wife and mother, I am a graduate nurse.

How can YOU benefit from having a Current Account?

You'll find it much easier to keep an accurate record of your current expenses when you have a Current Account.

When you pay all bills by cheque on your Current Account, you receive back, at the end of each month, all your cancelled cheques as well as a bank statement showing every withdrawal and every deposit you have made. The cancelled cheques serve as receipts—and are accepted in court as evidence of payment of the amount shown. Furthermore, they are much easier to file away than receipts and take less room to store. With them and your bank statements, you'll find it far easier to get an exact picture of how you spend your money.

So it's a good move to use a Current Account for paying all current bills—and keep your Savings Account for actual savings.

Cooking Hints

Make The Most of Beef Pot Roast

You knew or did you? that generally speaking, meats from the front of the carcass of beef and pork are the less tender cuts. Therefore they must be cooked by a "moist heat" method such as: stewing, braising, pot roasting, or simmering. Those cuts from the middle of the carcass (rib and loin sections) and the ham of the pork, are tender cuts and a "dry heat" method such as broiling, frying and oven roasting, are suitable.

Have you wondered why round or Swiss steak, if fried, isn't as tender as steaks taken from the loin? It's because the meat cuts from the round section of the beef are less tender and should be cooked with a moist heat method.

When buying a pot roast, plan on leftovers for slicing and at least one combination dinner. Sliced pot roast heated in good brown gravy may be served with cooked noodles or rice. If there isn't enough leftover gravy add canned beef bouillon or cream of celery soup or cream of mushroom soup.

Leftover sliced or cubed pot roast is good when heated in barbecued sauce to serve on toasted buns or toasted corn bread. The smaller non-sliceable meat makes excellent sandwich filling mixed with either chili sauce, pickle relish, mustard, horseradish or salad dressing. Shepherd's pie (ground cooked meat mixed with gravy or cream of mushroom soup, topped with mashed potato and baked in oven) goes over with all the family. Serve a bright green vegetable or salad and you'll get calls for seconds. Beef croquettes are another way to serve your ground cooked leftover meat.

Write for the free meat chart and booklet on meat cookery, availawble from this office.
